Known for its tolerance and diversity, Amsterdam has all of the advantages of a big city: rich culture, lively nightlife, international cuisine and great transportation – but is also quiet, with serene parks, squares and open spaces to enjoy throughout the city.

Dear Colleagues:

It is a great pleasure for us, the European Prosthodontic Association, to welcome all of you. Thank you for taking a time off your busy schedules and come to our small piece of land in Europe, famous for the battle against the sea.

We are very proud that the ICP has given us the opportunity of hosting the first joint meeting with the ICP. The challenge is big and we have worked very hard for delivering up to your expectations.

Hosting this meeting means very much for us, it is a great opportunity to have an event of this magnitude in our country, with all the presentations and knowledge from mainstream clinicians and researchers, and above all, the possibility to share with fellow colleagues from around the globe, which I believe have more things in common than separating us.

We feel privileged to have you here and being the world centre of Prosthodontics for these three days, I am sure you will a wonderful time in the Netherlands.

Hope you enjoy your stay in the Netherlands, it is a perfect time of the year. Enjoy the canals and the Art and everything Amsterdam has to offer you.

Have a great time in our country. Colleagues, welcome to Amsterdam!

Sincerely,

Dr Khee Hian Phoa

EPA President 2019

MEMORIES OF MADRID

Editor's note

Dear all,

This is a momentous conference where two of the eminent prosthodontic organisations in the world, the European Prosthodontic Association and the International College of Prosthodontists come together to showcase the "Science and Art in Prosthetic Dentistry." As we muse on the memories of the past conference in Madrid, we look to herald in the next conference held under the presidency of Dr Khee Hian Phoa in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. Dr Phoa and his team has been working with the ICP to showcase the next grand conference event! He and his team looks forward to welcome you all to the city that Amsterdam is and to this epoch-making conference that is to be!

Amsterdam, the city famous for its canals, beautiful houses, 'coffee' shops and dikes is one of busiest cities in the world and the capital city of The Netherlands. With the maximum day temperature in September in the early 20s and with the minimum in the mid teens, Amsterdam offers a beautiful climate to host the 43rd annual EPA conference.

Looking forward to seeing you all in Amsterdam in September 2019!!
